

Packets everywhere!

Written by Cedric Pernet / Senior Threat Researcher.

Contrary to what this title may suggest, this quick post will not be about network packets, so tcpdump or Wireshark freaks will probably not be so interested ;-)

Instead, it will be about phishing impersonating a packet delivery company.

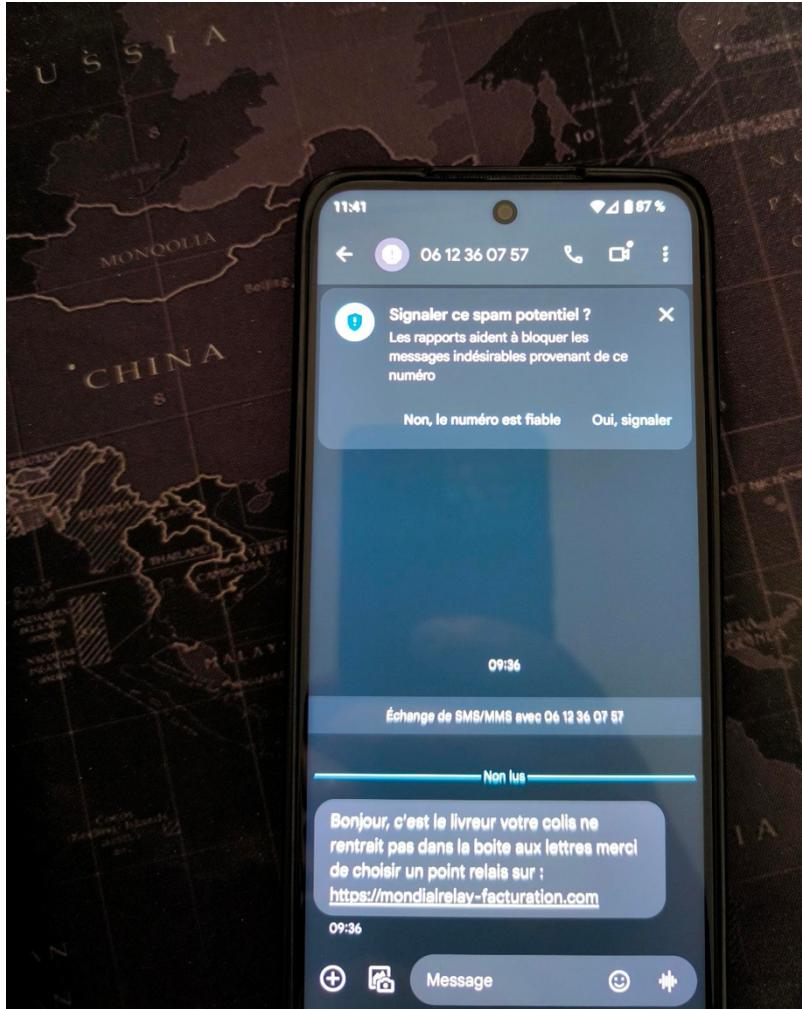

I had a bit of free time this weekend and thought I would use it to share some quick threat hunting on a particular phishing case. This publication also provides a few ways to actively monitor this threat and discover new fraudulent activity.

Finally, digging more, I could find a full phishing kit and connect it to a cybercrime threat actor dubbed “Traffyque” who maintains and sells phishing kits to cybercriminals in a phishing-as-a-service business model.

Thanks to my friend Jaromir Horejsi for his kind assistance, and to StalkPhish for the talks late at night and the awesome work they do daily to fight phishing ;-)

It started as usual

It all started with a SMS I received on my smartphone:

SMS as received on my mobile phone

It comes from a mobile phone number (06.12.36.07.57). The SMS is written in French.

Roughly translated, the text means “Hello, this is the delivery man your packet did not fit the mailbox thanks for choosing a pickup point on : <https://mondialrelay-facturation.com>”

Of course, it is a scam impersonating “Mondial Relay”, one of the biggest French delivery companies.

I am not going to investigate further on the phone number. My operator already hints that the content might be spam, and the phone number is probably spoofed.

So, the most interesting thing to do here is probably to start investigating the URL provided by the fraudsters.

A fraudulent domain

When the website at mondialrelay-facturation.com is being accessed, it first shows a captcha:

The captcha asks the user for a simple calculation, then the main content appears:

The content is mostly copied from the legitimate website at mondialrelay.fr, and does not contain spelling or grammar mistakes. Yet the lower part of the page is a copy of the legitimate content yet without any link, which might raise suspicion for the user:

lower part of the phishing page – plain text, no links.

So, the scam scheme is pretty easy to understand: cybercriminals massively send SMS to mobile phones in France, leading to the phishing content, and then collecting credit card (CC) information which they can monetize later. There are many ways to monetize CC information but it is not my topic for today.

Quick domain analysis

The fraudulent domain has been created on the 6th of January 2025. This is usual, as cybercriminals generally register domains short before starting their attack campaign. The Whois information shows that the domain has been registered using a registrar named "OwnRegistrar" and has enabled anonymous Whois data.

The name servers used by the domain are the following:

ns1.cronustime.org
ns2.aphroditelove.eu
ns3.areswarrior.com

We'll come to that later.

Now let's take a look at the hosting of the fraudulent content.

; ; ANSWER SECTION:
mondialrelay-facturation.com. 60 IN A 62.60.226.12
```

As can be seen, the domain is hosted on 62.60.226.12, which belongs to a company named FEMO IT:

We also see that the route to that /24 IP range is not very old, it has been created on 2024/10/04.

Using passive DNS data, we also see that the domain has led to 2 other IP addresses:

| | | | |
|------------------------------|---------------|---|---------------------------|

142.93.43.165 belongs to Digital Ocean in the US.

More interesting, 45.202.35.53, the IP address used on the day the domain was created belongs to:

We see that a company called “Dolphin 1337 Limited” uses a /24 IP range belonging to “Cloud innovation Support”.

That name is probably known to experienced threat hunters. Actually, Cloud Innovation Support is a company registered in the Seychelles by a Chinese individual named Lu Heng. That individual owns millions of IPv4 addresses from AFRINIC. I will not write more about it, suffice to say that Lu Heng and AFRINIC are not into the best relationship.

As for my own experience, it is extremely common to see cybercrime using Cloud Innovation Support IP addresses ranges.

Passive DNS pivoting

Using passive DNS data, let's have a closer look at those IP addresses.

The one belonging to “Dolphin 1337 Limited” is associated with 77 different domains, all of them being fraudulent.

ecarte-vitale.info
espace-mondialrelay.fr

lockers-mondialrelay.com md-reivery.info
mein-abonnenten-bereich.com
mein-elbaraffeisen.com

A few examples of fraudulent domains leading to Dolphin 1337 Limited.

The IP address from Digital Ocean has been associated with 22 domains, which we also saw associated to the IP address from Dolphin 1337 Ltd.

Yet the IP address from FEMO IT revealed close to 900 domains, all fraudulent, since the opening of the /24 route in October 2024.

NS pivoting

Another common pivot when investigating such case consists of examining the NS servers used by the fraudulent domains.

Remember, our initial fraudulent phishing case showed the following:

ns1.cronustime.org
ns2.aphroditelove.eu
ns3.areswarrior.com

Looking at other domains using those NS servers, we can quickly list more fraudulent websites.

We only found 2 fraudulent domains using “areswarrior.com”, yet “aphroditelove.eu” is associated to 150 domains, while cronustime.org is associated to close to 2000 domains. A quick look at those domains tends to make us believe they are all fraudulent, but let's take it with a grain of salt: a real reputation analysis for all the domains should be done to really know if it is 100% fraudulent activity or if there are still a few legitimate domains in that pool.

Different phishing cases

I decided to work on the domains found via passive DNS data, and not from the NS.

Based on the domain names, which most often contain explicit terms such as “netflix”, “mondialrelay”, “shipping”, etc., I decided to make a few statistics:

| Category | Number of domains |
|--|-------------------|
| Parcel and Delivery Tracking Services | 153 |
| Netflix and Subscription Management | 123 |
| Government and Administrative Services | 102 |
| Account Management and Renewal (Non-Netflix) | 101 |
| Insurance and Health Services | 92 |
| E-commerce and Billing | 75 |
| Parcel Re-routing and Pickup services | 68 |
| Miscellaneous Other Scams | 168 |

We end up with about 900 different domains, all leading to phishing content.

A closer look at the content itself

I looked at a few different pages for different categories:

As can be seen, the captcha page is very similar, visually speaking. Both French versions, while the logo and templates changes to suit the abused services, show the exact same text. A closer look at the code reveals more similarities:

Code from a MONDIAL RELAY French packet delivery service captcha page

As can be seen, the pages use random values for different fields, and use base64-encoded content to hide the captcha part that leads to the phishing page.

Both pages are probably generated with the same tool or service.

From a technical point of view, when the user accesses those pages, he is being redirected to the captcha page.

The page is stored in a subfolder and is often called calcul.php.

Example: mondial-relay-ly.info/pac/calcul.php

I tested 913 websites, looking for the storage of that captcha script. Unfortunately, as can be expected, those websites have a very short “online time”. Websites often stay online only a few hours before being reported and shut down/deactivated. Therefore, the automated crawler I built for that task only provided results for a bit more than 60 active websites.

I ended up with a few interesting paths anyway:

| Path | Number of websites using it |
|-------------------------|-----------------------------|
| /pac/calcul.php | 48 |
| /how/calcul.php | 7 |
| /pages/billing.php | 4 |
| /amendes/infospagee.php | 3 |
| /ask/calcul.php | 2 |
| /captcha/captcha.php | 2 |

More investigation needed

More investigations should be done on the hosting.

“Dolphin 1337 Limited” needs further investigation, especially knowing it is currently being dissolved:

FEMO IT could be investigated further, to determine if it is a bulletproof hosting company for example. More than 900 fraudulent domains leading to one of their IP addresses is surely a motivation to investigate more. Once again, this is not my topic for today, but maybe I'll investigate more later and update this publication ;-)

Threat Tracking

This investigation provides clues on how to track that particular activity, no matter if it is a phishing-as-a-service operation with multiple affiliates or one threat actor.

For starters, passive DNS information collected every day on the IP addresses we found will probably allow the discovery of new fraudulent domains, yet it is not a 100% method as passive DNS data is always incomplete.

In our case, NS data seem pretty interesting too. By monitoring all new entries for the NS servers we found, we can enrich our knowledge on this threat and find new domains to block almost in real time.

Here's a small extract for 2025/01/12:

New domains discovered on 2025/01/12 by monitoring NS server at cronustime.org

This is good because it looks like 100% fraudulent, without false positives, which is always good for building blocking lists of course.

Now remember those paths for the captcha scripts we found? How about hunting for those?

Using the excellent service at urlscan.io (thank you guys!), we are able to list websites containing those paths. All it would need would be to hunt for all the paths and filenames we discovered earlier, as shown here:

Hunting for “calcul.php” on Internet.

The business model behind this threat

Hunting more, I was able to find an actual full phishing kit for this threat. While this is probably the most interesting part in this research, I will not disclose how I did that, as it could potentially help cybercriminals to increase their knowledge on hunting methods.

Anyway, here is the tree for the full phishing kit:

608 Jan 13 09:54 ./
1248 Jan 13 09:42 ../
4107 Nov  9 20:32 .htaccess
 96 Nov 29 13:00 .well-known/
30120 Nov 11 17:24 a.php
 150 Nov 28 17:46 actions/
 288 Nov 28 17:46 enc/
11235 Nov 11 16:51 encoder.php
 832 Nov 28 17:46 img/
 288 Nov 28 17:46 includes/
30096 Nov 11 17:26 index.php
30006 Nov 11 17:26 p.php
 288 Nov 28 17:46 pac/
 512 Dec  3 17:37 panel/

12037 Aug 18 18:51 serve_image.php
30120 Nov 11 17:26 t.php
29994 Nov 11 17:26 v.php
29864 Nov 11 17:26 w.php

Phishing kit folders and files

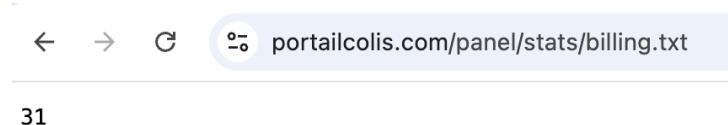

We see the “pac” folder which contains the captcha code:

36450 Aug 20 20:47 analyze.php
141049 Nov 11 12:53 calcul.php
10084 Aug 18 17:17 index.php
128 Nov 28 17:46 js/
96 Nov 28 17:46 panel/
11883 Aug 18 18:54 serve_image.php
5025 Feb 7 2024 set_captcha_session.php

“pac” folder content

A quick look at the code confirms our finding, it is closely the same kit we observed.

Another way to verify we indeed have the same kit is to look in actual phishing websites if some of the hidden folders are the same. Indeed!:

Screencapture – A hidden file reveals the number of persons who filled the phishing form.

So, for every website, we could probably get an idea of the number of victims.

Now, even more interesting, the website allowed us to confirm it is indeed a phishing-as-a-service business model.

A threat actor called “Traffyque” is behind it all and has a website on the clear web:

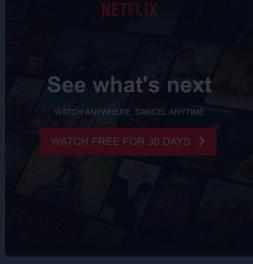

The screenshot shows the homepage of Traffyque.com. The main header says "Welcome to the traffyque.com". On the left is a sidebar with links: Accueil, Download, Tutorials, Subscribe, Renew, History, Contact & F.A.Q., and Top Up. The main content area displays four cards representing different phishing kits:

- Caisse d'épargne (FR): Shows a red building with a logo, with text below: "Banque du top 10 français comptant plusieurs centaines de milliers de clients".
- CTT (PT): Shows a post office interior with a counter, with text below: "Service postal du Portugal traitant les colis locaux du pays, rien de mieux pour exploiter pleinement un Pays".
- PostNord (SE): Shows a blue delivery van in front of a wooden house, with text below: "Service postal du la Suède traitant les colis locaux du pays, rien de mieux pour exploiter pleinement un Pays".
- Aramex Multilingue: Shows a dark blue box with text: "Idéal pour l'international, explorez les pays de votre choix et trouvez la voie qui vous convient."

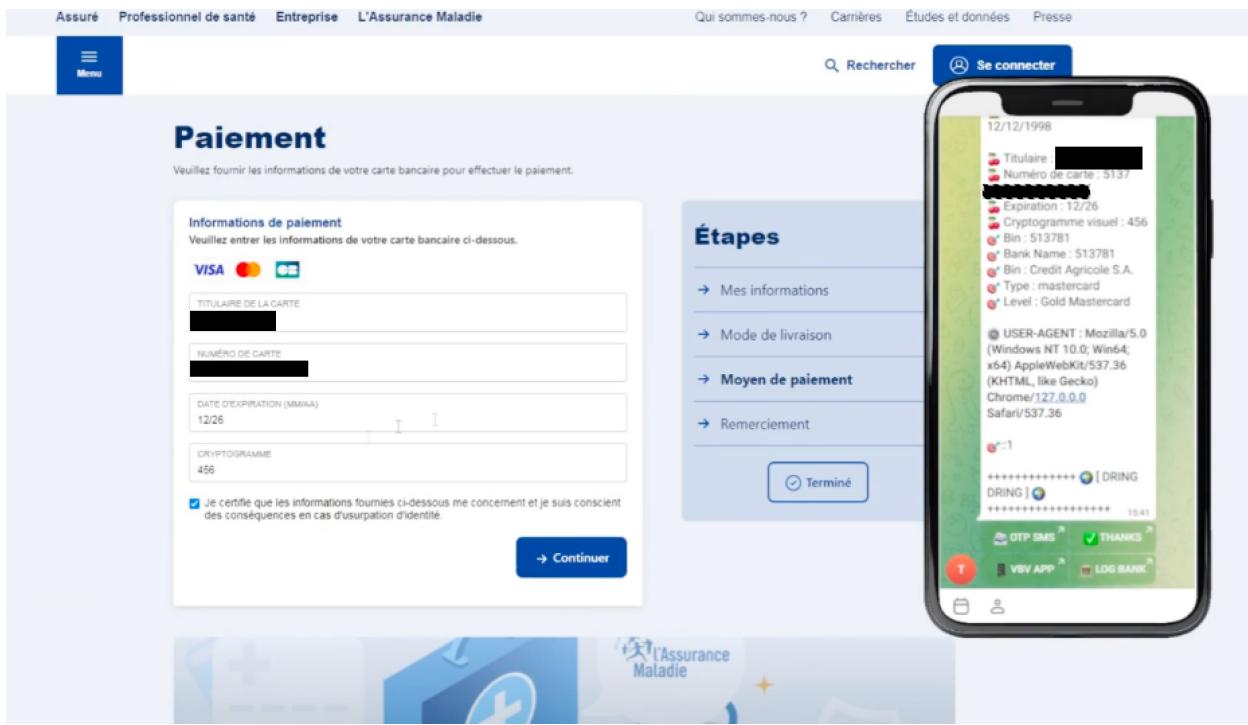

At the bottom of the main content area, there are "See more" and "▼" buttons.

Its website is a mix of French and English language, and reveals about 60 phishing kits targeting different companies/organizations, maintained by Traffyque.

“Our development team guarantees frequent updates for a good design and innovative products, staying therefore undetectable by bots. Explore our products in different versions, so you are free to choose the one that fits perfectly your needs and preferences”.

Conclusion

We discovered one fraudulent phishing website, and discovered that more than 900 other domains related to that threat.

We also provided at least 3 different ways to monitor and keep finding new domains as they are registered and used by the cybercriminals.

This quick investigation allowed us to provide hundreds of fraudulent domains.

Finally, we were able to discover one of the phishing kit used, and link it to a cybercriminal phishing-as-a-service actor dubbed “Traffyque”.
